MARMO

Roccia cristallina, da decorazione e costruzione, lucidabile e di natura compatta, prevalentemente costituita da minerale di durezza Mohs da 3 a 4, quali calciti, dolomiti e serpentini. In funzione della sua composizione mineralogica la roccia cristallina può essere sintetizzata in quattro grandi categorie: alla prima appartengono i marmi propriamente detti [ovvero calcari metamorfici ricristallizzati], i calcefiri e i cipollini.

Alla seconda i calcari, le dolomie e le brecce calcaree lucidabili. Alla terza i serpentini. Alla quarta le oficalciti.

MARBLE

Crystalline rock for building and decorative purposes that can be polished. Characterized by a compact nature, it mainly consists of minerals with 3 to 4 Mohs hardness, such as calcites, dolomites and serpentine rocks. Depending on its mineralogical composition, crystalline rock can be roughly divided into four large categories: marbles in the strict sense belong to the first category [i.e. recrystallized metamorphic limestones], along with calciferous and carystium rocks. The second category includes limestones, dolomites and limestone breccia fit for polishing. Serpentine rocks belong to the third category and ofphalcites to the fourth.
